2022 GOLF OUTING BENEFICIARY

The Challenge: Accessibility at Home for the Disability Community

Pennsylvania has a unique problem when it comes to housing for people with disabilities. The commonwealth has one of the highest populations of people with disabilities living in the community. However, we have one of the oldest housing stocks in the country, with almost 80% of housing in Pennsylvania built prior to the introduction of the Americans with Disabilities Act in 1990.

This means that many homes are not designed to accommodate the unique needs of the disability community which can limit access to independence in one's home. This can lead to isolation, a lack of opportunities to engage in work or other pursuits, as well as a negative impact on key social determinants of health. Inglis believes that solutions to this challenge depend on available financial resources, disability-competent providers, and access to assistive technology.

The Opportunity: Offering More Options to Promote Independence

Last year, Inglis took a big step in addressing the accessibility housing barriers for people with physical and mobility disabilities. Through a merger with Self-Determination Housing of Pennsylvania (SDHP), a statewide organization focused on home modifications and housing for people with disabilities, Inglis brings our unique, disability-competent care and expertise in assistive technology (AT) to this long-established program. For 16 years, SDHP has modified homes by making changes to the physical environment that enables the individual to remain independent at home. For those with significant or complex disabilities, however, traditional funding sources for home modifications can be limiting.

The new Inglis Independence at Home Fund, established through your support of the 2022 Golf Outing, will enable more homes to be accessible by:

- Offering a non-traditional funding stream for more extensive home modifications for those with complex needs where traditional funding is not sufficient.
- Covering AT needs integrated with traditionally funded home modifications in which technology would not meet the funder's criteria.
- Providing needed AT to increase accessibility in an existing home.
- Making the necessary repairs or improvements that eliminate barriers to independence in a home.

Please join us in elevating the options for people with disabilities that will enable them — and those who care for them — to achieve their goals and live life to the fullest.

THE IMPACT

For Ann, navigating her home was a challenge in her wheelchair. Her house has one 2nd floor bathroom, narrow doorjams, and, in addition, had a slew of needed repairs. In fact, the house was so inaccessible that most of the time Ann crawled through her home.

It was clear that home modifications would enhance Ann's independence. Thanks to Inglis' new program in partnership with SDHP, we installed a stair glide system, handrails in the hallway and bathroom, and an accessible tub and shower in the existing bathroom this past fall. While these modifications were crucial, there is more that could help improve independence and quality of life for Ann, but they don't fit into traditional funding sources.

With additional funds, needed repairs to the home could allow for an accessible bathroom on the first floor, accessible tech and appliances in the kitchen, and so much more. With your support, Ann and so many others with physical and mobility disabilities can live more independently in their own home.
